Purpose of Paying Reparations.

By United Press

BERLIN Oct. 4.—Chancellor Gustav Stresemann at noon today was completing his conversations for the formation of a new government. It was expected the new cabinet would be completed immediately so there will be little delay in Stresemann's plans to rush through his economic program. Stresemann was said to believe that the greatest haste is needed in beginning his work for the economic restoration of the country to show the Allies he intends to increase Germany's earning capacity for the payment of reparations.

The chancellor feels he must act at once to free Germany's economic wheels from the mud in which they are now all but hopelessly buried. One of Stresemann's supporters said Stresemann intended his own resignation with that of the cabinet to President Ebert early this morning. It was at once accepted and the President charged Stresemann with the formation of a new government. There was every indication the new cabinet will be on a stronger basis than the old coalition government which was hampered by the inability of Stresemann to harmonize the divergent interests in the nation supporting him.

Some quarters said the new "small cabinet" will be for all practical purposes a dictatorship, equal to a right wing dictatorship. Its program probably will include a tax levy on capital and abolition of the eight-hour day and increased production and sharp control of prices.

Authoritative sources also believe Stresemann will dispense the Reichstag and take advantage of President Ebert's emergency proclamation to grant himself special powers.

The fall of the coalition government early this morning came after eight weeks of continuous trouble, during which the cabinet was able to accomplish only one thing of importance—surrender of passive resistance in the Ruhr.

2,000 LIVES
POISON LIQUOR
TOLL IN U. S.

By United Press

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—Poison booze took a toll of more than 2,000 lives in the United States during the first nine months of 1923. It was a contributing factor in scores of additional deaths including motor accidents. At least 90 per cent of bootleg liquor sold in the average American city is poisonous to a greater or lesser degree.

These facts were revealed in a nation-wide survey made public here today. The figures represent official estimates by coroners and other responsible authorities in 21 states, and it is probable the actual total is available would show a far greater figure.

The highest death rate occurred in Philadelphia where 600 are estimated to have died since January 1. Pittsburgh was second with 300. New York city third with an estimate of 204 and Chicago fourth with 170.

Did It for Wife,
Kels' Defense in Insurance Murder

By United Press

STOCKTON Cal. Oct. 4.—A woman who was with Alex Kels the morning the wealthy local butcher slew a stranger and left evidence that he himself had been murdered told her story to the police today.

Mrs. Bessie Ratto of Stockton admitted to the authorities that she accompanied Kels to the scene of the crime a few hours before Kels killed Jim McGovern a wanderer from Indiana. She said she was with Kels in a cab a short distance from the backyard from where the stranger's body at first believed to be that of Kels was found. Despite the woman's story the butcher sobbed as he insisted I did it for my wife. I wanted her to collect the insurance.

Kels left the wanderer's body in an automobile to which he set fire and it was believed to be that of the actual slayer whose widow mourned him and attempted to collect $100,000.

"Please don't ever tell her," the slayer begged. "Let her go on thinking it was I who was killed and that she already done her weeping over my grave."

Mrs. Kels who is about to become a mother has not been told of the denouement of the tragedy.

FUND TO FIGHT
KU KLUX KLAN*Next Sixty Days' Battle in Oklahoma to Be Historic,
Governor Says.*SAYS HE'S THREATENED*Would Rather Die by Hands of Assassins Than as Fugitive, Statement on Situation Sets Forth, Tells Another Election for December 6.

OKLAHOMA Oct. 3.—A campaign for funds to finance a fight against the Ku Klux Klan in Oklahoma was launched today by Governor J. C. Walton. Declaring that Tuesday's vote, which resulted in adoption of a constitutional amendment designed to permit his impeachment, was a Klan election and a Klan vote, as well as illegal the governor announced that he would be continued indefinitely in Oklahoma if necessary to subvert the inevitable empire.

The governor said the martial law campaign against the Klan has already cost $40,000. Opponents of the governor claim it has cost several times that amount.

Governor Walton has made two definite moves to outlaw the Klan. First he filed his statement with the secretary of state declaring the election illegal and calling for another election for December 6. Secondly he secured a temporary restraining order in district court preventing election commissioners from certifying the results of the election.

The governor's political enemies acting on the assumption that the Klan was legal are asking positive steps toward removing him from office. State legislators hold secret caucuses preliminary to calling a special session as soon as possible to start impeachment proceedings. A petition was also filed for a grand jury investigation of the governor's use of secret service agents.

The governor made the following statement:

At the election called for December 6 the question of who shall rule in Oklahoma—the law-abiding citizen or the invisible empire—will be decided finally and decisively. The Ku Klux Klan guns of the nation are now trained on me and I am daily in receipt of threats of assassination. I had rather die by the hands of an assassin than die in the hands of a law-abiding citizen. In the next 60 days I will have fought the most historic political battle in the history of the country since the Civil War and the question will be decided December 6 whether this state and possibly this nation shall be controlled by the Ku Klux Klan.

QUAKER CITY SALOONS OPEN;
ORDER DEFIED*Retail Liquor Dealers Association Holds Fictitious to Close Is Illegal.

By United Press

PHILADELPHIA Oct. 4.—Despite notices signed by United States Attorney General Daugherty and State Attorney General Woodruff that they must get out of business at once the majority of Philadelphia's 1,000 saloons opened today as usual.

Council for the Philadelphia Retail Liquor Dealers Association has rendered an opinion to the saloon operators that the closing order is illegal and it is understood the saloons will carry their fight to court to prevent the wiping out of saloons in the city.

In the meantime federal and state authorities were quietly preparing to back up their warnings by the police lock procedure. Prompt action will be taken against saloons which defy the closing order.

Governor Mitchell who is directing the war to drive saloons from the state made a first hand investigation last night of how the closing order was received by saloon keepers. He was accompanied by a police officer and some secret service men. He visited the center part of the city visiting several saloons and cafes that were running full blast.

More than a dozen saloons were visited. The saloons pushed through crowds that were lined up at the front row so as to get information to guide him in his law enforcement campaign.

After the tour had lasted three hours Mitchell returned to his hotel but refused to comment on what he had seen or what his next move would be in the liquor war.

WASHINGTON Oct. 4.—Governor Gifford Pinchot's historic campaign against liquor law violation is an event of national importance in its bearing on Volstead Act enforcement. It constitutes one of the most astounding steps recently administered to those in charge of federal enforcement of the prohibition law.

Sunday Games
Of Tornadoes
Are Opposed

The Connellsville Ministerial Association has taken steps to stop the Sunday football game planned for this season by the Connellsville Tornado football team the first of which is scheduled for the coming Sunday October 7.

A committee of ministers it was learned today had made an effort to have the games stopped without legal action but seeking no encouragement from the promoters they failed to connect. The game Sunday will be in the afternoon and it was said there is no sufficient time to get legal action to prevent it but further efforts will be directed towards breaking up the future Sunday schedule.

The Tornadoes in the field for the fourth season are campaigning for a Sunday football in this end of the county for the first time. This has been a little said regarding the Sunday game it being quietly a violation of church discipline that it would be on Sunday were placed only this week.

When word reached the ministerial association of the proposed Sunday game a committee was immediately organized to investigate the matter. It visited the promoters in an effort to have the games played on other dates but was unsuccessful in obtaining such a change.

Then the committee went to Uniontown and had retained in attorney to take the steps.

The Sunday game brings together the Tornado football team of Pittsburgh and the Tornadoes. The city authorities can take no steps in the matter as the game will be played beyond the city limits on top of time.

Sunday football was played in a town in Ohio at Brownsville. It was not when these games were not tolerated the local gridiron determined to run a similar schedule this season. The Tornadoes club has a so-called Sunday schedule in a game having been played on September 30.

Just what steps will next be taken could not be learned today.

ENGINEERS JOIN REST OF BIG FOUR IN WAGE
INCREASE MOVEMENT

Like officials of the Brotherhood of Railroad Engineers have received from the office of United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America a circular inviting their general committee of adjustment to serve the required 70 days notice on their respective managements at the expiration of the present schedule.

At the time you serve the required notice of your desire to open your schedule the local instructions committee to present the following articles:

(1) That all rates in effect under decision No. 1 of United States Railroad Labor Board effective as of May 1, 1923 and applicable to locomotive engineers, be restored in their entirety.

(2) In all classes of service the earnings of engineers be increased over time and other regulations applicable for each day's service provided shall not be less than eight dollars per day.

Wherever you are working jointly with the firemen or have a joint schedule we would recommend that you take the matter up with their general committee and general chairman and work in conjunction with them.

With the engineers joining in the wage increase movement all of the Big Four brotherhoods are now active in harmonious and in some respects jointly with each other. The Brotherhood of Railroad Firemen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers took a similar first step in filing a request for an increase ranging from $1 to $5 per month. This action followed a preliminary vote of members of the two brotherhoods.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Locomotive men sent out a circular of instructions in September 11 to chairman of the general committee of adjustment instructing them to present requests as soon as possible for restoration of the 1921-22 per cent cut handed down by the Labor Board on July 1, 1921.

Are you afraid to face the scales?

Do you walk around the town with a pocket full of pennies, fascinated by the thought that some scale may register your weight a few pounds lighter?

Many women do—yet it's quite unnecessary if one will only give up a few fattening foods, and substitute tasty, nourishing dishes that do not add weight.

Make these light, delicious muffins and biscuits yourself, so that they will give the minimum of fuel value. Substitute them for wheat bread or richer bread-stuffs, and they will go a long way toward helping you diet easily.

NOTE: Instead of using rich, whole butter, try diluting a pound of butter with a pint of evaporated milk. Beat well, together, and you will find it palatable, yet not fattening.

High School Football Team Meets Mount Pleasant Township Saturday.

"BOOST" IS WATCHWORD

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Oct. 4.—When Scottdale High School football team meets Mount Pleasant Township at Athletic Park, Saturday afternoon Coach Bullock will have one of Scottdale's finest teams on the field. The line-up is in good shape; not a man out so far.

"The High School Athletic Park alone, without the support of such a wonderful team as we have, should be an incentive to every live sport in Scottdale to come out and buy a season ticket and support the home team," said a booster.

Five new sections of bleachers are being built and this will allow every person to be taken care of, and every fan that buys a season ticket for $9 will be admitted free to the bleachers. The general admission is 50 cents, with 10 cents extra for the grandstand. A section of the grounds has been reserved for boys under 12 years old and they will be admitted to the grounds for 10 cents.

The line-up for Saturday will likely be Boyle, White and Utery, ends; Harkell, J. Utery and Loucks, tackles; Osterweis, Kunkle, Ruth and Pritschard, guards; Small, Reynolds, Sales, Grigaly, Pliska and Palmer, in the back field.

Methods of distributing the films were perfected at the meeting of the publicity department held here recently.

At the present time the bureau has a library of 31 films adapted to rural audiences. Many of the films were made by the bureau's own company. The officials expressed hope that they would be able to place a motion picture machine in every farming community in the United States.

GROWTH OF THE BUILDING & LOAN

Recently published statistics giving information concerning building and loan associations show the steady growth and the amazing proportions attained by this First Aid to Home Owning.

During the past eight years the associations in the United States have increased from 6,506 with assets of $1,161,295,375 and 3,331,895 members in 1915 to 10,000 associations with $3,342,540,953 assets and 6,864,144 members in 1922. The gain in assets in 1922 over 1921 alone was $41,766,732. Data for 1923 will not, of course, be available until after the close of the year but it is estimated that the tabulation, when made, will show even a larger increase over 1922.

The building and loan system did not originate in the United States but it has been developed here to a greater extent than in any other country in the world. It has, in fact, assumed the importance of a national institution alongside savings banks in the stimulation of thrift among the people. The conduct of associations and the safe guarding of funds deposited by members have been the subject of legislation in every state where this institution flourishes.

Almost every community has an association within its boundaries or in nearby towns making means available to practically every person who has the very praiseworthy desire to become owner of his or her home.

While some persons of large income or means are depositors in building and loan associations, because of their safety, the vast majority of members are found in the ranks of the wage earners and proprietors of small business enterprises. In the latter case the depositors have found the resolution to lay by some part of their weekly or monthly earnings or profits. Not infrequently the money paid in monthly dues represents expenditures that were formerly made for something the member has decided is unnecessary or, perhaps, of very much less value than a steadily growing deposit in a building and loan association, whether it is intended to form the nucleus of a home-buying fund or to remain in the association as a dividend earner.

But whatever the specific purpose or object of the member the important fact is that he or she is practicing thrift, a habit that should begin at the same time a young person becomes a wage earner.

Conneville is exceptionally well equipped with building and loan associations, all capably managed and ready at all times to extend their facilities to persons who wish to begin saving money systematically and regularly, or who are desirous of realizing their ambition to become possessors of their own home. If not familiar with the methods by which they operate, you ought to get in touch with the secretary of one of the three local associations at the first opportunity and take the steps necessary to enroll yourself as a member.

No matter which side may be at fault in the Oklahoma affair, the residents comprising the opposing sides can lay claim to having accumulated about the largest collection of enemies in captivity at the present writing.

It is up to the statistical wizards to figure out what relation, if any, there is between the decrease in the marriage rate and the increase in the rates for marriage.

The more the Guardian of the Secret of the Missing 42 seeks to shift responsibility from the Democratic politicians as proponents, propagandists and promoters of the movement to induce Chief Murphy to run as an independent candidate for sheriff, the clearer does the whole scheme become, both to Murphy's friends and the public at large.

Governor Walton of Oklahoma has more courage than the public believed. He has committed his cause to the lawyers.

The expense accounts of some of the recent candidates show that their votes cost them as much as 30 cents each. So far as results go that was more than they were worth.

Business was "dne" in both the local and county courts, judging from the fine totals for September.

Advertising in the Larger Sense

Manufacturers Record.

"Come therefore, and I will advertise thee these what this people shall do to thy people in the latter days." Numbers 24:14.

"And I thought to advertise thee, saying, Buy it before the inhabitants, and before the elders of my people." Ruth 4:4.

We thus have Biblical authority for advertising, for publicity, for bringing things to the attention of the buyers; but there is another way in which advertising may be considered and that was stated by President Harding when in referring to advertising he dealt with that larger sense in which advertising can be considered—the sense of advertising American and American life to the world. In discussing the subject of advertising President Harding said:

"I believe advertising and publicity. It has done more to bring humanity to right understanding than almost anything else in the world. I want to join with you in doing a little advertising for our country, and when I do this I am not trespassing on the properties."

"When you put advertising forward you must believe in it. Advertising to be effective must be honest and must carry a message. I want to advertise the United States of America as the best republic in the world; I want to advertise American life as the best life in the world; I want to advertise American business as the best business in the world, and God helping me, we're going to make it the best business in the world without letting government destroy it."

The individual concern can wisely advertise its business. The individual man can do the same. But all of us individually and collectively ought to advertise our city, our state, our nation, our country and advertise it in the spirit of optimism which would voice the coming of a better day despite the clouds which sometimes hover over us. We ought to make America the best country in the world in order to advertise it as the best country.

It would be false to advertise a business on an untruthful statement. There is an old saying that unless you can deliver the goods, do not advertise them.

We must make America the best country in the world in order that the whole world may come to realize that fact and imitate all the good works which we may do.

We all ought to be united in every good word and work for the betterment of the community in which we live, for the advancement of the state in which we are citizens and for the upbuilding of the whole country, morally, spiritually and financially.

We ought to be able to make the community in which we live so clean and pure of life by our own example in part and by our activity for good.

Five Years, Five Hours
Or, Mayhap, Five Minutes.

Letrobo Bulletin.

Members of the Medical Society of Pennsylvania, in session this week in Pittsburg, are quoted as saying that men who drink bottles of liquor will not live more than five years, because of the deadly effect of the concoction upon the kidneys.

Of course, if one happens to get hold of some liquor containing wood alcohol, as was the case with six men in Pittsburg, over the way, the five years may be reduced to five hours, or even five minutes.

And nobody has any way of telling, short of a chemical analysis, what bottles of liquor contains.

Germans May Start
Iron Works in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO (By mail to United Press).—Brazil is to have a German-owned iron wire factory, according to Hermann and Daniel Roese, proprietors of a large factory in Düsseldorf.

"The Roese brothers stated they were thinking seriously of transferring their establishment in the Ruhr to Brazil. They are now studying financial and economic conditions of this country, after which they expect to choose the best location for installing their plant."

The two German industrialists said they expected to produce iron wire for all Brazil and perhaps all South America in the plant.

Since Brazil is rich in minerals and has native iron in all states, it is believed a plant in this country could produce iron wire, particularly that used in reinforced concrete construction, at much lower cost than the imported product.

Many School Children
Have Defective Eyes

By United Press.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—New England educators are deeply concerned over revelations made by Guy A. Henry of New York, general director of the Eyesight Conservation Council of America, before the recent conference of juvenile agencies here recently.

Henry said that one-fourth of America's 24,000,000 school children are handicapped by poor eyesight. "This results in serious interference with school work and an impairment of general health."

at all times as to be able to advertise it to every friend.

We ought to be able to work for the betterment of our state that it too may grow in education, in morals and in all things that make for the betterment of mankind and then be able to advertise it to the world in the sense which President Harding stated that he wanted to advertise the United States, as the best republic in the world and to advertise American life as the best life in the world.

Then in language somewhat similar to that of President Harding we ought to say of our own business, of our own community, of our own state and our own nation that "God helping me, I am going to make my business the cleanest, and the most honest business, my community the best and most moral, my state the best in education, in ethical advancement, in material development, and I am going to seek to make the nation in which God has permitted me to live the very best country on the face of the earth and I pledge to my country and to God every ounce of mental, physical and spiritual strength I have to accomplish this end."

BUCKWHEAT CAKES.

Days are getting colder, wind is getting colder.

Summer's turning scarlet just a little down the way.

Air a little clearer, winter's getting nearer.

Buckwheat cakes for breakfast would go mighty good today!

Misty like this morning in the valley, that's a warning.

Front is due to tell us that the summer's on the wane.

Cattle stand together on a sign of chilly weather.

Buckwheat cakes for breakfast would go mighty good again.

Flowers are looking faded, just a trifle dried and faded.

Just a few to blossom, then the frost will cut them down.

Wonder what's the matter? Mother ought to get her better.

Guess I'll have to tell her that the summer's leaving town.

Morning's cold and nippy and the grass is wet and slippy.

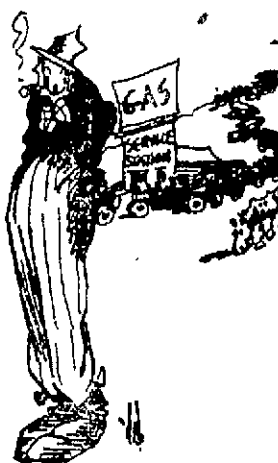

And it's good to see the blaze of a wood fire in the grate.

Signs of fall appearing, for the long cold days are nearing.

At breakfast time I'd like to see some buckwheat cakes on my plate.

Remember the carefree days when as a barefoot boy you went fishing? You will be able to live them all over again in the leisure of a secure old age if you have an Equitable policy for a goodly sum insuring when you are, say, 55 or 60. Now is the time to begin saving. Many a man of 50 or older, who would really enjoy fishing, cannot go because he must keep his nose to the grindstone. A maturing Equitable policy will give you this means to buy leisure—and fishing tackle—in your old age.

U. S. HAS FINE COIN COLLECTION

Latest Addition to the National Treasury in Washington.

IS OF UNUSUAL INTEREST

A coin collection of the first magnitude is the latest addition to the national treasury in Washington. Until now the United States has been able to make no particular boast as a collector of rare coins and medals. The government has owned an abundance of material, but it has not been available in the form of a comprehensive collection. The treasure has been divided, with inevitable loss of value.

With the removal of the Philadelphia mint collection to Washington and its consolidation with the material owned by the Smithsonian Institution, the American people have ready access to one of the great collections of the world.

The concentration of the Philadelphia and Washington collections is taken as the initial step in giving the United States a place in the ranks of nations which have taken numismatics with the seriousness the science deserves.

Numismatics may be described as covering coins, medals and decorations. In these three branches it affords a wide field for historical study and a wealth of human interest, dealing with the progress of nations, the development of civilization and the individual achievements of the human race.

Of Great Importance. Recent visitors to the Smithsonian have found Curator Holte busily engaged in the installation of the material, old and new. To Mr. Holte the move is of great importance from the historical standpoint. American history in his special study and problems, and as curator of the division of history he recognizes the value of the combined collection.

The newly organized display aggregates approximately 50,000 pieces. With one exception it is the largest assemblage of specimens in the United States. As far as public exhibit is concerned it is the largest. The one exception is that of the American Numismatic society, in New York, but the New York material is intended primarily for research and not for exhibition purposes, while the Smithsonian collection is the property of the public and will command the interested attention of students and sightseers alike.

One of the notable features is the series of coins of ancient Greece, presenting exact reproductions of some of the most interesting coinage of centuries long past. Included in these are the classical types prepared by the British museum, selected with a view to showing the development of the art of coinage. This carries the study back to the seventh century before the birth of Christ, the earliest period recognized by numismatists.

Attention is also given to the attention in their classification and research. In this collection may be found reproductions of coins covering the whole range of ancient Greece. The coins show the coins of Lydia, in Asia Minor, and embrace Roman coinage as recent as that of the year 100 A. D.

Spanish Coins. There is special interest to Americans in the collection of Spanish coins linked with the early history of this country. Actual specimens which were in circulation in the American colonies during the Colonial period afford interesting sidelights on history.

Another notable feature is the collection of the coins of Poland, presented to the Smithsonian by the Polish National alliance as a token of the warm friendship between Poland and the United States. Poland's history is exceedingly rich, and the present struggle of the nation to establish republican government modeled after that of the United States gives particular value to this showing of the national coinage.

PHILDELPHIAN GETS SURPRISE OF HIS LIFE

"It gives me pleasure to endorse the Tanlac treatment, and I would not be without a bottle of this wonderful medicine in my house," declared Frank Savare, machinist with the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., residing at 2220 West Huntingdon St.

"For two years I suffered from severe and prolonged attacks of indigestion. My appetite was nearly gone, and I would eat so little that I could feel myself growing weaker each day. Backache and pains in my stomach made me miserable, and I couldn't seem to get any relief.

"The results from my very first bottle of Tanlac were a big surprise to me. After taking three bottles I enjoy my meals immensely, the pains have completely disappeared from my stomach and back, and I feel as well as I ever did in my life."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

GOOD SOAP FOR TWO CENTS A POUND

Make It At Home By This Easy Process—Takes Less Than 30 Minutes.

Newsdays move and more women are doing as their mothers did and are making their own soap. If you have never tried it, you will be surprised to see how easy it is to make good soap, soft soap, hard soap, floating soap, just by using kitchen scraps and waste grease together with a can of Merry War Lye, the safe and sure soapmaker. In the old days when soap was made by the boiling process, it took nearly all day to make a kettle of soap. Now it is hardly any work at all—requiring only 15 minutes less than 30 minutes. Saves you money and gives you all the pure, clean, soap you need for kitchen, laundry and all household purposes. You will find simple directions for soapmaking on the label of every can of Merry War Lye.

Where Do You Taste?

If asked what part of the body you taste with, you might answer, "With the mouth." But try an experiment. Put a fragment of salt into your mouth, placing it between the teeth and the cheek. Until it dissolves it has absolutely no taste at all.

The fact is that the sides of the mouth are incapable of certain substances which have an aromatic taste, such as spices and coffee and wine, can only be appreciated by the front half of the tongue.

A piece of sugar applied to the tip of the tongue tastes extremely sweet. Try it on the back of the tongue, and it is almost tasteless.

With many other foods the case is reversed, and it is the back part of the tongue and the mouth in which they are properly appreciated. A few experiments will prove to you that taste is strangely localized in the mouth.

The thing in Soap that aids BEAUTY

THE only soap that really aids beauty is the soap that does a good job of cleaning—and that's Sweetheart's Lather. Purely is the quality that keeps soap from doing damage, but Lather does the work.

Once you've tried the rich SOLVENT LATHER of Sweetheart in cold or hot water, hard or soft, you'll see the difference. Sweetheart's Lather clears out the oily deposits that become hardened in the fine grain of the skin—and its extreme purity makes it mild and soothing.

Fine soap costs little to make and should retail at a low price, if sold without frills. Sweetheart is highest quality at bottom price because it is nothing but soap—no coloring matter, heavy perfume, nor fancy wrappings.

Overfit the hand. Non-stooping because all the air is squeezed out under heavy pressure to get the maximum amount of soap into the cake. Delicately scented. Just try Sweetheart—from your grocer or the better druggists.

At the Theatres

The Paramount

"SHADOWS OF THE NORTH" A more colorful setting could scarcely have been chosen for an outdoor drama than that presented in "Shadows of the North." William Desmond's latest starring vehicle which is at the Paramount Theatre today.

It is a story of pioneer mining and claim jumping in Northwestern Canada and much of the glory of the beautiful timbered hills of that region is reflected in the film play. The exterior scenes were taken in the Feather River country in Northern California, which is notable for its scenic beauty. The river itself has an important place in the story and it furnishes one of the biggest thrills in the play. The hero, with the daughter of the leader of a gang of claim jumpers as his prisoner, runs the rapids in a canoe and the small craft is hurled down the swift stream like a shot.

It was a daring stunt and all of its action was caught by the cameraman. The lighting effects were unusual and very beautiful.

The story was adapted to the screen from the popular novel, "The Skyline of Spruce," by Edison Marshall.

The Soisson

"MONEY, MONEY, MONEY!" You have been told to expect the most in thrills from Katherine Macdonald's latest First National release, "Money, Money, Money!" which begins today at the Soisson Theatre.

Miss Macdonald meets an emergency in the story by driving a high-powered car through a blinding storm—racing against time in order to save her father from disgrace and foreclosure on his factory.

An Priscilla Hobbs, envious of every little social fame that doesn't belong to her, she persuades her father to accept a twenty-thousand dollar advance on an estate before the affairs of the estate are settled. It is when the settlement is reached and the Hobbs' divorcee that they have been bequeathed a wheelchair and about twenty dollars in cash that they realize the force behind the suggestion of Carter, the banker, when he induced Hobbs to accept the money on loan.

Herschell Mayall fills the role of Carter, and Carl Stockdale appears as Hobbs. Others in the cast are Frances Raymond, Paul Willis, Brenda Fowler, Margaret Loomis, Charles Clary and Jack Dougherty.

Larry Bruns, who provided the story, wrote especially for Katherine Macdonald, and while preparing his play embodied the sort of incidents that give full play to the star's daring as a thriller.

The Orpheum

"TO THE LAST MAN." The genuine backwoodsman is apparently replacing the scenery carpenter in the construction of motion picture sets for work on location. Improved lighting and photography and the fact that most audiences are "from Missouri" have made it necessary to set directors to build the real thing instead of false sets.

In the filming of "To the Last Man" a Zane Grey production at the Orpheum Theatre the remainder of the week, an exact reproduction of a pioneer settlement in the rugged mountains of Arizona was made in the Tonto Basin. On this trip into the wilds, the scenery carpenters were left behind and a group of axemen enlisted who could howl real logs rather than huckle paper mache. A reproduction of a settlement consisting of twelve dwellings, the lower stories of which were built of adobe, was made. Logs and rough-hewn boards and shingles were used to complete the buildings.

Victor Fleming directed the picture for Paramount and the featured players are Richard Dix and Lois Wilson with Noah Berry, Robert Edison and Frank Campana in support. The story is that of a feud fought out literally to the last man. It was adapted from a novel by Zane Grey.

GASOLINE'S EVAPORATION POINT

The distillation test alone reveals the true value of gasoline.

The presence of elements which take a temperature of over 400 degrees to gasify causes starting troubles, carbon, knocking and oil dilution. The best gasoline evaporates entirely at 400°.

You cannot make your own distillation test but you can insist on Waverly because by government test it has a lower distillation point and therefore gives more miles per gallon. 32106

THREE MEN AND A MAID

Mr. Peters uttered a subdued, sardonic sound. He was finding this scene oppressive to a not very robust intellect.

"Ho—Mr. Samuel—told me your name, Miss Miliken," he said dully. Billie stared at him.

"Mr. Marlowe told you my name was Miss Miliken?" she repeated.

"He told me that you were the sister of the Miss Miliken who acts as stenographer for the gov—er for Sir Malabry, and sent me in to show you my revolver, because he said you were interested and wanted to see it."

Billie uttered an exclamation. So did Mr. Bennett, who hated mysteries.

"What revolver? Which revolver? What's all this about a revolver? Have you a revolver?"

"Why, yes, Mr. Bennett. It is packed now in my trunk, but usually I carry it about with me everywhere in order to take a little practice at the Rupert street range. I bought it when Sir Malabry told me he was sending me to America, because I thought I ought to be prepared—because of the Underworld, you know."

A cold gleam had come into Billie's eyes. Her face was pale and hard. If Sam Marlowe—at that moment smiling blithely in his bedroom at the Blue Boar in Windlehurst, washing his hands preparatory to descending to the coffee room for a bit of cold lunch—could have seen her, the song would have frozen on his lips. Which, one might mention, as showing that there is always a bright side, would have been much appreciated by the traveling gentleman in the adjoining room, who had had a wild night with some other traveling gentleman, and was then nursing a rather severe headache, separated from Sam's penetrating baritone, only by the thickness of a wooden wall.

Billie knew all. And, terrible though the fact is as an indictment of the male sex, when a woman knows all, there is invariably trouble ahead for some man. There was trouble ahead for Sam Marlowe. Billie, now in possession of the facts, had examined them and come to the conclusion that Sam had played a practical joke on her, and she was a girl who strongly disapproved of practical humor at her expense.

"That morning I met you at Sir Malabry's office, Mr. Peters," she said in a frosty voice, "and you said I had finished telling me a long and convincing story to the effect that you were madly in love with a Miss Miliken, who had killed you, and that this had driven you off your head, and that you spent your time going about with a pistol, trying to shoot every red-haired woman you saw, because you thought they were Miss Miliken. Naturally, when you came in and called me Miss Miliken, and brandished a revolver, I was very frightened. I thought it would be useless to tell you that I wasn't Miss Miliken, so I tried to persuade you that I was, and hadn't killed you after all."

"Good gracious!" said Mr. Peters, vastly relieved; and yet—after all—there is a bitter mixed with the sweet—a shade of disappointment. "Then—er—you don't love me after all?"

"No!" said Billie. "I am engaged to Bream Mortimer, and I love him and nobody else in the world."

The last portion of her observation was intended for the consumption of Mr. Bennett, rather than that of Mr. Peters, and he consumed it joyfully. He folded Billie in his simple embrace.

"I always thought you had a grain of some hidden away somewhere," he said, paying her a striking tribute. "I hope now that we've heard the last of all this foolishness about that young round Marlowe."

"You certainly haven't! I don't want ever to see him again! I hate him!"

"You couldn't do better, my dear," said Mr. Bennett, approvingly. "And now run away. Mr. Peters and I have some business to discuss."

A quarter of an hour later, Webster, the valet, smiling himself in the stable yard, was aware of the daughter of his employer approaching him.

"Webster," said Billie. She was still pale. Her face was still hard, and her eyes still gleamed coldly.

"A mistake. Give him this, will you?" "Certainly, miss. Er—any message?" "Any what?" "Any verbal message, miss?"

He Had Had an Excellent Lunch, His Pipe Was Drawing Well, and All Nature Smiled.

"No, certainly not! You won't forget, will you, Webster?" "On no account whatever, miss. Shall I wait for an answer?" "There won't be any answer," said Billie, setting her teeth for an instant. "Oh, Webster?"

"I can rely on you to say nothing to anybody?" "Most undoubtedly, miss. Most undoubtedly!"

"Does anybody know anything about a fellow named S. Marlowe?" inquired Webster, entering the kitchen. "Don't all speak at once! S. Marlowe. Ever heard of him?"

He paused for a reply, but nobody had any information to impart.

"Because there's something jolly well up! Our Miss B. is sending me with notes for him to the bottom of the lane."

"And her engaged to young Mr. Mortimer?" said the scullery maid, shocked. "The way they go on! Chronic!" said the scullery maid.

"Don't you go getting alarmed. And don't you," added Webster, "go shoving your ear in when your social superiors are talking. I've had to speak to you about that before. My remarks were addressed to Mrs. Withers here."

He indicated the cook with a respectful gesture.

"Yes, here's the note, Mrs. Withers. Of course, if you had a steaming kettle handy, in about half a moment we could—er—but, perhaps it's wiser not to risk it. And, come to that, I don't need to unstick the envelope to know what's inside here. It's the raspberry, mad'am, or I've lost all my power to read the human female countenance. Very cold and proud-looking she was! I don't know who this S. Marlowe is, but I do know one thing: in this hand I hold the instrument that's going to give it him in the neck, proper! Right in the neck, or my name isn't Montagu Webster!"

"Well!" said Mrs. Withers comfortably, pausing for a moment from her labors. "Think of that!"

"The way I look at it," said Webster, "is that there's been some sort of understanding between our Miss B. and this S. Marlowe, and she's thought better of it and decided to stick to the man of her parent's choice. She's chosen wealth and made up her mind to hand the humble squire the miltion. There was a rather similar situation in 'Cupid or Mammon,' that Noesgay Novelleto I was reading in the train coming down here, only that ended different. For my part I'd be better pleased if our Miss B. would let the cash go, and obey the dictates of her own heart; but these modern girls are all alike. All out for the stuff, they are!"

"Oh, well, it's none of my affair," said Webster, smiling a not unmanly sigh. "For beneath that immaculate shirt-front there beats a warm heart. Montagu Webster was a sentimentalist."

CHAPTER XV

At half-past two that afternoon, full of optimism and cold beef, gaily unconscious that Webster, with measured strides was approaching ever nearer with the note that was to give it him in the neck, proper, Samuel Marlowe dangled his feet from the top bar of the gate at the end of the lane and smoked contentedly as he waited for Billie to make her appearance. He had had an excellent lunch; his pipe was drawing well, and all nature smiled. The breeze from the sea across the meadows tickled pleasantly the back of his head, and sang a soothing song in the long grass and ragged-robins at his feet. He was looking forward with a rosy glow of anticipation to the moment when the white flutter of Billie's dress would break the green of the foreground. How eagerly he would jump from the gate! How lovingly he would—

The elegant figure of Webster interrupted his reverie. Sam had never seen Webster before, and it was with no pleasure that he saw him now. He had come to regard this lane as his own property, and he resented trespassers. He tucked his legs under him and scowled at Webster under the brim of his hat.

The valet advanced toward him with the air of an affable executioner stepping dutifully to the block.

"Mr. Marlowe, sir?" he inquired politely. Sam was startled. He could make nothing of this.

"What?" "Have I the pleasure of addressing Mr. S. Marlowe?"

"Yes, that's my name."

"Mine is Webster, sir. I am Mr. Bennett's personal gentleman's gentleman. Miss Bennett entrusted me with this note to deliver to you, sir."

Sam began to grasp the situation. For some reason or other, the dear girl had been prevented from coming this afternoon, and she had written to explain and to relieve his anxiety. It was like her. It was just the sweet, thoughtful thing he would have expected her to do. His contentment with the existing scheme of things returned.

The valet came again, and he found himself, amply disposed towards the messenger.

"Fine day," he said, as he took the note.

"Extremely, sir," said Webster, outwardly unemotional, inwardly full of a grave pity.

It was plain to him that there had been no previous little rift to prepare the young man for the cerebral operation which awaited him, and he edged a little nearer, in order to be handy to catch Sam if the shock knocked him off the gate.

As it happened, it did not. Having read the opening words of the note, Sam rocked violently; but his feet were twisted about the lower bars and this saved him from going backward. Webster stopped back, relieved.

Says—Now Stiff Joints Must Go!

Now Discovery Timbers 'Em Up and Even the Creaking Ceases.

Yes: It's true—the world progresses. All you have to do nowadays to lumber up that stiff, rusty knee joint is to squeeze a half inch of miracle working substance from a tube.

Then rub it on the offending part for about a quarter of a minute or until it soaks through the skin and disappears on its errand of mercy.

Then read the evening newspapers and go to bed.

The chances are that your misbehaving knee joint will lose its "creak" while you are dreaming about the high fences you used to leap when you were a youngster.

"And in the morning," says one who has tried the new discovery, "you'll feel so happy that you'll want to jump into your sportiest clothes and walk briskly down the street just to show the neighbors that you are not as old as they think you are."

Joint Ease: They call this wonder working substance, for the reason that when ordinary remedies fail to lumber up the stiff, inflamed rheumatic joint, or reduce the swelling, Joint Ease succeeds.

It's a good name for a good, clean, painless prescription that in just a few months has proven to a multitude of people that lame, swollen, distorted joints can speedily have the kinks taken out of them and work as smoothly as ever.

But Joint Ease is for bothersome joints, whether in knee, ankle, hip, shoulder, spine or finger, and for that purpose its sale is immense.

One Consumption Gains

Forty years ago, when the incandescent electric light was born, more than nine-tenths of all the gas manufactured in the United States was used for lighting purposes. With the advent of electric lights, the gas was wasted, but the consumption of gas rose steadily, and has continued to rise steadily ever since, reaching last year an estimated total of more than 350,000,000 M. cubic feet. The explanation lies in the increasing use of gas as fuel.

How To Sleep ON A BARE FLOOR

IT is more a matter of SLEEP, than of bed or board.

Some people can sleep putting up, standing up, even while walking.

Many people can't sleep in the softest of downy beds and all of us suffer occasionally from nerve-racking, wearing, tiring wakefulness at night.

There is always a reason for sleeplessness. Usually, it's a "sour" stomach, a liver that has "lain down" on the job, congested bowels, or biliousness.

Then, just before retiring, take Becham's Pills. They cleanse an uneasy stomach, encourage the organs of digestion and elimination to natural activity, and assure restful sleep no matter what!
